Question 1

For each of the following statements indicate whether it is 'TRUE' or 'FALSE'. Each correct answer carries 1 mark. (11)

- a) Public development spending by government tends to correlate directly with the economic climate, being increased when expansion of the economy is desired and decreased when it is necessary to apply the brakes.
- b) Public development decisions by government as a stakeholder in property development are mostly undertaken on a political grounds.
- c) Insurance companies enjoy the benefit of more control with an investment in property company share than a direct investment in property.
- d) Commercial estate agents are employed by firms to find accommodation. Estate Agents are, therefore, a source of information on the assessment of unsatisfied demand relating to the quantity and quality of space and preferred location.
- e) The demand for space is to some extent a function of the strength of the local economy. Types of employment and level of unemployment can help to show where the gaps exist in the market or the manner in which the local economy might more successfully be filled.
- f) Rentals are a reflection of scarcity, rising rent will tend to indicate unsatisfied demand whilst static or falling rent are likely to indicate an oversupply of premises.
- g) Real estate research for investment decision making focuses exclusively on design, layout, services and building specifications required by users.
- h) Market analysis for proposed real estate development considers market area, economic trends, supply and demand indicators, market conditions, and feasibility factors. No due cognizance must be given to Institutional factors such as culture, customs and traditions, habitual ways of thinking and of doing things.

- i) Residential developers who focus on building owner-occupied facilities usually only require short-term development finance often over months rather than years.
- j) The amount of money Residential developers need to borrow is comparatively larger in contrast to commercial real estate developers.
- k) Private sector developers may become involved in the initial land acquisition stage. To assemble a large site from many landowners with smaller units they can use their legal powers of compulsory purchase to ensure the tenure to the land is secured.
